Probable Dissolution of the English Ministry,

London, March 13.—The journals this morning comment at great length on the defeat of the Government on the Irish University education bill and speculate upon the course Gladstone will pursue.

The Times says the Cabinet will proba-bly resign to-day and Disraeli will be called by the Queen to form a new ministry,in which event the Parliament will be dissolved and general elections ordered before July.

The Post says the Government has not determined whether it will resign or dissolve the Parliament and appeal to the country. The vote on the Gladstone bill was a great surprise to the Cabinet and Liberal members of the House of Commons. Later advices state that the Liberals are desirous of upholding the ministry by a vote of confidence. The Conservatives are unwilling to accept the responsibility of the dissolution of the Parliament.

The session of the House of Commons today is looked forward to with great anxiety, as Gladstone will then announce the course decided upon by the ministry.

Meeting of the Committee-Arguments Heard-And Adjourned to meet at Knoxville, May 7th.

The Committee met in the City Hall, at ten o'clock, A. M. N. E. Cobleigh, D. D., presiding: Rev. J. Braden was elected Secretary pro. tem. After a few remarks by the chairman; Rev. Mr. Spence, chairman of Committee on location, announced the different points held in nomination before the Committee, asking for the location of the Central University.

Col. T. Fort, Chairman of the citizens meeting of the city of Chattanooga, stated that their Committees, had met with Dr. Haven, Prof. Wilson and others, a few weeks ago, and as they understood, had a proposition made to them, but afterwards thought singular that another meeting certain inducements. They did not propose to be caught again. If the committee did not think it to their interest to come here he did not want them to come.

Col. Fort spoke at length of the greatness of the prospects of Chattanooga. That their citizens were emphatically a people of "great expectations. The entire speech was characterized by a spirit of independence and bitterness toward the commit-

No amount of $25,000 or $50,000 should influence his decision. We would not be ready even now to accept a proposition of-fering $500,000. He wanted to look at the places and study their centrality and pro-bable future growth, health, &c. He was startled at the idea that Col. Fort should have supposed the committee were committed to Chattanooga or any other place. Mr. J. W. Leigh, of Chattanooga, on behalf of the Board of Trade, said the people of their city would do all they could, but they did not like the idea of bidding against more wealthy communi-ties after the manner in which they had been fooled in the matter of the Baptist University, and insinuated that this committee might attempt to play the same

Mr. Spence, of Knoxville, said the committee would be actuated by no mere local considerations or personal favors. Their object was to place the Institution where it would do the greatest amount of good to the largest number of people. The committee were representative, not local.

the city of Knoxville.

He said after an enthusiastic meeting of the leading citizens in the Board of Trade rooms, on motion it was proposed to ten-der to the committee $50,000 and a suitable site, which was unanimously adopted.

He spoke at length of the centrality of location, beauty of situation, the health, morality and intelligence of its citizens. He called attention to the surrounding country, the prospect of its beauty in a short time, a railroad centre. Judge Andrew's speech was close 'pointed and ef-

We do not claim that Knoxville has arrived at such a state of prosperity as Chottanooga has, to say "if you don't want to come here on our terms, we don't want you." On the contrary the people of Knoxville do want you.

The Southern Cultivator for February favors us with the following pointed hints: The present and the next month are apt not often in condition to receive the plow. months to press forward their ploughing. ing an imposing display of the resources of If they do so, we congratulate them now East Tennessee. John T. Wilder, withdrawn. He stated that it was his If they do so, we congratulate them now opinion the matter had been settled, and on freedom from the harrassing apprehension that if they wait for land to get in proper condition, they may fail to finish had been called. Their city had been trifled up before planting time—or if disregard-with by the Baptist Church, holding out ing the condition of their lands, they push on, many find them after the winds of spring have passed over them, in worse condition than if they had never been touched. To those who have been so unfortunate as to be caught between the two horns of this dilemma, our advice is: take the chances of getting through in time, and plough only when the land is suffi-ciently dry. See the plough gear, the double and single trees, and the ploughs themselves, in the best possible condition, so as not to lose a moment of precious time. Provide extra ones of such things as are liable to get of order-be on hand yourself to repair every breach promptly. Look well ahead, and during wet weather do all their action would be regular and unblased toward any locality, and that Col. Fort was much mistaken in his view of the subject.

necessary work, as milling, hauling wood, sending to blacksmith's shop, and other avoidable things, so that none of these may claim attention in fair weather. Substitute management for routine, and you will in all probability come out right in the end.

Stubble and rested land should receive attention first. Instead of ploughing these in lands 15 or 20 feet wide, it is decidedly better to lay off the rows and bed up regu-larly. It is easier to run the level on the smooth surface before ploughing, than on the rough one after. Besides, the laying off of guide rows can be done leisurely during wet times, whereas, if delayed till spring, time is apt to press heavily. But the greatest advantage is, that land thrown up in beds, does not become so badly "water sogged" as that lying flat, and the FINE CUSTOM SHIRTS. healthy action of the atmosphere is very much greater in the former than the latter.

Judge Orr's Reminicences of the Brooks

Nearly seventeen years have passed since this outrage, yet new facts connected with it are every now and then coming to light. A party of gentleman were dining with Hon. James L. Orr in Washington, just prior to his late departure to his foreign mission, when he incidentally spoke of the affair. He said he had heard of the intended assault, and meant to have prevented it by being in the Senate chamber and arresting the blow. On his way thither he stopped in the library to look at a book, which, not being readily found, detained him a few minutes longer than he proposed, and during the delay the assault was made. Brooks confessed to him, before his death, that he never meant to have it so deadly as it was-intending only to "disgrace" the Senator with the South by a flagellation—and said he could not believe at first that Sumner was really hurt. He said further, that he was tired of life, and wanted to die. The notoriety he won was killing him by inches-every bully and blackguard in the South thrust his attention and acquaintance upon him. and it was too terrible a punishment to bear. Mr. Orr said he had no doubt Brooks felt the keenest regret for his part people here sometimes called suburb of in the affair, and that he was indeed tired of life.—Charleston Bulletin.

"Them's my Sentiments."

Your editorial of this morning with regard to "professional lobbyists," is just to the point. If there is a creature, on this green earth, more contemptible than another, it is this one you have so graphically described. When a man can obtain his consent to enter a legislative body, assembled for the high purpose of promoting the welfare of all the people, and accept a bribe to perform any sort of work, honora-ble or dishonorable, he is completely de-void of manhood. The wonder is that patriotic legislators will suffer such a 'skunk" to pollute their atmosphere. He is a walking mass of moral putrification, stinking as he goes and filling the air Prof. R.
